Capgemini Named A Leading North American Applications Outsourcing Provider By Independent Research Firm

Company's Strong Vision for an Industrial Approach, Depth and Breadth of Capability Cited as Key Factors in Ranking

NEW YORK, JUNE 25, 2007 – Capgemini, one of the world's foremost providers of Consulting, Technology and Outsourcing services, today announced that it has been ranked in the “Leaders” category of North American Applications Outsourcing (AO) services providers by Forrester Research, Inc.

Capgemini was among the select companies that Forrester invited to participate in its March 26, 2007, Forrester Wave™ report, “North American Applications Outsourcing, Q1 2007.” In this evaluation, Capgemini was cited as a “Leader” among North American Applications Outsourcing Providers.

The Forrester report states that Capgemini is an AO leader “by virtue of its depth and breadth of capability,”<sup>1</sup> and describes Capgemini in its vendor summary as follows:

“Capgemini boasts a newly expanded offshore presence by virtue of its acquisition of Kanbay, thus neutralizing a past weakness – assuming it can succeed in combining the companies. Capgemini has a strong vision for an industrial approach to AO and has significant enterprise applications skills. It also has a penchant for relatively large AO engagements and a strong vision for future AO customer requirements.”<sup>1</sup>

“We are proud to be recognized as a leading applications outsourcing provider, while a growing number of North American-based companies turn to Capgemini to not just reduce cost but better manage the complexity of their applications portfolio and to align IT to more closely support business strategy” said David M. Bonner, Head of Americas Outsourcing Services, Capgemini. “I believe this reflects not only the market recognizing our capabilities
