Capgemini positioned as a 'Leader' in the NelsonHall NEAT vendor evaluation for Procurement Transformation

Paris, September 29– Capgemini today announced that it has been positioned as a 'Leader' in the NelsonHall NEAT vendor evaluation for Procurement Transformation in the Transformation Capability market segment. Capgemini was recognized for its ability to meet future client requirements, drive end-to-end procurement process transformation and deliver immediate value to clients.

The NelsonHall Vendor Evaluation & Assessment Tool (NEAT) analyzes the performance of 12 global vendors offering digital procurement services. Capgemini was recognized for its experience in cloud based platform implementation and change management, its extensive portfolio of robotic process automation (RPA) and automation use cases, its proprietary analytics platforms, and its potential to add adjacent peer-to-peer services to finance and accounting clients.

Alisa Samoylova, NelsonHall's Procurement BPS Market Analyst, said, "Capgemini has been recognized as a Leader for its commitment to the procurement transformation space. Capgemini's broad service offering, various frameworks and methodologies help its clients to reach their digital transformation goals."

Greg Bateup, Practice Lead, Digital Procurement Services at Capgemini said, "We are delighted to be positioned as a Leader in the NelsonHall evaluation for procurement transformation. It further highlights our deep functional expertise in supporting our clients from vision to execution, through our broad range of services from digital strategy and innovation to cloud procurement and operating model design. As we take our clients on a journey to the Frictionless Enterprise, we're looking forward to further strengthen our services by offering a single plug-and-play procurement tool, expanding the use of intelligent automation to identify gaps and leveraging our design thinking capabilities to improve user experience."
