Capgemini selected as a Strategic Partner for Daimler's Global Program

Capgemini is well placed to play a pivotal role in executing Daimler's IT strategy

Mumbai, 07 October 2015 – Capgemini, one of the world's foremost providers of consulting, technology and outsourcing services has been chosen by Daimler as a strategic partner for its recently launched Service Delivery Center (SDC) in Bengaluru.

Capgemini helps the SDC in successful management of Daimler applications and support the center in migration, testing, training and SharePoint support services. It will also enable SDC in setting up a world class testing factory. The program is a multi-year engagement, spanning various IT divisions of Daimler.

Capgemini has been selected due to its proven capability in enabling clients achieve global efficiency and agility through a transparent, high quality and industrialized IT service delivery model. Capgemini brought forward its deep expertise in rapid agile and industrialized solutions. Capgemini's India capability convinced Daimler of its strength in rapidly ramping up as per the client's requirement. Additionally, Capgemini's extensive experience of helping companies to set up SDCs was well appreciated.

Aruna Jayanthi, CEO, Capgemini India said, "Capgemini won a significant piece of work against formidable competition. Our deep expertise on Daimler's processes, strong presence in Germany and India, passionate drive to excel will enable SDC achieve global efficiency and agility in service delivery."
