Capgemini becomes proud partner of India-France Year of Innovation 2026

Mumbai, February 18, 2026 – Capgemini today announced its platinum partnership with the India-France Year of Innovation 2026, reinforcing the company's commitment to accelerating innovation and strengthening cross-border collaboration between the two countries. As part of this collaboration, Capgemini has developed a digital platform that connects innovators across India and France, creating a single environment for organizations to partner, connect, learn and stay updated on programs and events in both countries.

Capgemini's selection as a partner is underpinned by its global innovation capabilities, and its proven track record in building global ecosystems that connect organizations with emerging technologies, start-ups and academic institutions - to empower enterprises to accelerate real-world innovation and turn ideas into scalable impact. The company's continued investments in advanced technologies, supported by a significant number of employees being trained in generative AI, further positions Capgemini to support innovation initiatives at scale.

"India and France are deepening their collaboration in emerging technologies, particularly in areas such as artificial intelligence, where both countries share a common vision and long-term strategic interests. This makes 2026 a significant milestone in their innovation journey. As an AI-powered business and technology company and a proud partner for the Year of Innovation, Capgemini brings its expertise in supporting complex, multi-stakeholder initiatives across geographies. We combine our technology leadership with extensive experience in large ecosystem engagements to help organizations collaborate in a more structured, seamless, and effective way," said Aiman Ezzat, Chief Executive Officer of the Capgemini Group.

With deep expertise in technology-led transformation and ecosystem orchestration, Capgemini is adept at enabling structured engagement, greater visibility, and seamless knowledge exchange across diverse stakeholder groups.
