

Diversity and Inclusion is a priority at Capgemini, India

Our approach

At Capgemini, we build trusting relationships, find common ground and identify areas for collaboration within the organisation, as well as across our industry and within our communities.

“Capgemini is committed to equality of opportunity and dignity at work for all, irrespective of caste, religion, race, colour, creed, ethnic or national origins, gender, marital status, sexuality, disability, class or age.”

Achieving results and building a truly inclusive organisation is a long term journey. Our aim is attracting, advancing, engaging and retaining a diversity of talent while fostering an inclusive culture – one where differences are valued and embraced.

Happiness and Well-being

Happiness is a mental or emotional state of well-being characterized by positive or pleasant emotions ranging from contentment to intense joy. Well-being is the experience of health, happiness, and prosperity. It includes having good mental health, high life satisfaction, a sense of meaning or purpose, and ability to manage stress.

We are determined to respond to an ever-changing world, and as a global organisation and a network of 100,000+ workforce in India, we recognise that we have an important role in leading the way through shaping attitudes, challenging discrimination and developing a workplace where everyone is valued – regardless of their sexual orientation, race, gender identity and expression, religion, or disability. Capgemini in India is committed to cultivating LGBT+ talent and driving equality forward.

- Ashwin Yardi, CEO, Capgemini India

Governing policy

What makes Capgemini a great place to work? An inclusive environment where everyone is heard and gets the freedom to be one's own self. Ever since the founding of the Capgemini Group in 1967, diversity and inclusion have been integral to our business, workplace, and people culture. Embedded in our Code of Business Ethics and reflected in many of our other Group and local policies, diversity and inclusion are at the heart of our core values of honesty, boldness, trust, freedom, team spirit, modesty and fun, established by Group founder Serge Kampf. The principles of diversity and inclusion shape how we work with our clients, partners, suppliers and colleagues around the world.

Diversity and Inclusion (D&I) policy

POPSH – Policy on prevention of sexual harassment

Capgemini has zero tolerance policy against sexual harassment by fellow employees, supervisors, associates, clients or other non-employees.

Grievance review policy

This policy is in place to provide a forum for employees to escalate their concerns and get them addressed through a formal process without prejudice to his or her position within the company.
