Capgemini expands partnership with Telia Sweden to accelerate AI-powered business transformation

Stockholm, Sweden, November 9, 2026 – Capgemini today announced that it has been selected by Telia Sweden to support the next phase of its business and technology transformation, driven by AI. Building on a relationship spanning more than 40 years, Capgemini will help Telia Sweden accelerate innovation, improve productivity and enable faster delivery of business value by simplifying and consolidating its technology ecosystem, while accelerating the adoption of AI at scale.

The extended collaboration is designed to create a more agile enterprise, strengthening business and technology capabilities, operational efficiency and robustness across its IT environment. A central component is Capgemini's AI-first delivery model that combines human expertise with intelligent automation and AI-powered capabilities across software engineering, IT operations and business transformation, to deliver concrete business outcomes. Capgemini has worked in close partnership with Telia Sweden for over 40 years and has played a key role in supporting its business continuity and the implementation of complex transformation.

"As we continue our transformation journey, we are simplifying our technology landscape and strengthening our partner ecosystem to increase speed, efficiency and focus. Capgemini has been a trusted partner for many years, and we are pleased to deepen our collaboration as we leverage AI and modern technologies to create greater value for our customers and our business," says Ida La Spisa, CIO, Telia Sweden.

"We are very proud to be working in close partnership with Telia Sweden at a pivotal moment in its AI transformation. As a trusted AI-driven business and technology transformation partner with a proven track record in the telecommunications sector, Capgemini is uniquely positioned to help telecom operators navigate large-scale transformations. Together, Telia Sweden and Capgemini will focus on fostering innovation, driving operational impact, and delivering measurable business outcomes, while strengthening Telia Sweden's strong position in an increasingly AI-driven market," says Caroline Segerstéen Runervik, Managing Director, Capgemini in Sweden.
