Capgemini positioned as a Leader for Outsourced Testing Services by Ovum

Paris, 15 July 2015 – Capgemini, one of the world’s foremost providers of consulting, technology and outsourcing services, has been ranked as a Leader in Ovum’s Decision Matrix Report entitled “Ovum Decision Matrix: Selecting an Outsourced Testing Service Provider, 2014–2015.” The combined testing practice of Capgemini, which incorporates the capabilities of its subsidiary Sogeti, was recognized for its significant contribution “in educating the market on the emerging paradigm of comprehensive outsourcing.” Capgemini was also commended for a strong client base and vertical presence in the Public, Banking and Telecommunications sectors.

According to the Ovum report, Capgemini has been positioned for “its depiction of organizational models of testing functions and the corresponding implications on sourcing,” considered to be the strongest in the market. The key criterion for organizations to feature in the Ovum Decision Matrix report was to possess comprehensive outsourcing of centralized testing functions.

Govind Muthukrishnan, Senior Vice President and Testing Global Service Line Leader at Capgemini said: “We are very proud of this prestigious recognition which represents Capgemini’s strong foothold in Outsourced Testing Services. Over the years Capgemini has grown its presence significantly in the testing domain and Ovum reaffirms our position as a strong market leader with expertise in world class, business driven Global Testing services.”

The last five years have witnessed consistent profiling of Capgemini as a Leader in Global Testing services for meeting the various benchmarks as defined by Ovum in its reports. With over 12,300 testing professionals and a further 14,500 application specialists around the world, Capgemini and Sogeti are jointly regarded as a trusted partner and testing innovation enabler for their clients globally and have successfully leveraged their innovative methodologies (TMap® and TPI®) to help organizations achieve their testing and QA goals.
