Capgemini wins Teradata EPIC award for Collaborative Demand

Paris, 26 November 2012 – Capgemini, one of the world's foremost providers of consulting, technology and outsourcing services, has announced that it has won the Teradata EPIC award for Collaborative Demand for the second year in a row, at the Teradata Partners Conference in Washington. The award is given to Systems Integrators and Consulting partners who have contributed to the greatest year-over-year order growth for Teradata technology and services, through their demand creation efforts jointly with Teradata teams. Capgemini was also finalist in two other categories: Systems Integrator Business Innovation and Systems Integrator Enterprise Intelligence.

Paul Nannetti, Global Sales and Portfolio Director at Capgemini said: “We are delighted to be recognized for our close collaboration with Teradata, ranking above other global Systems Integrators in this category. This is testament to our strong global Business Information management Global Service Line and our technology partnership with Teradata across multiple sectors. We look forward to continuing to strengthen our relationship with Teradata in the years to come.”

This is the fourth consecutive year that Capgemini has won a Teradata Partner award. In 2009 Capgemini won the Teradata EMEA Systems Integrator Partner of the Year Award for leadership and collaboration in Telecommunications and Financial Services, in addition to the Teradata Innovation Award, in recognition of collaboration with Teradata in France. In 2010, Capgemini received the Teradata Partner Impact Award for Innovation for their role in the joint “Smart Analytics for Utilities” initiative.

“Teradata congratulates Capgemini for its outstanding performance as winner of the EPIC Award for Collaborative Demand. Our joint customers recognize the value of our partnership, and we appreciate the relationship and contribution that they continue to drive in growing customer use of Teradata technology and solutions,” said Bob Fair, executive vice president, global field operations, Teradata.
