The Smart Digital Store transforms the in-store retail experience

The retail landscape is changing. The increasing influence of digital, the blurring of online and offline shopping, more demanding customers and the explosion of both new enabling technologies and alternative channels are all forcing retailers to rethink the role of brick-and-mortar stores in their interactions with customers.

The Smart Digital Store enhances the domain of the retail store with capabilities from the digital world. This opens up new ways to add relevance for consumers, empower employees and deliver business value for the retailer by running store operations differently and more efficiently.

The Smart Digital Store leverages partner technologies such as Intel and Google Cloud to proactively empower retailers to use customer presence and profiles in store:

- Push personalized promotions based on online basket and profile
- Notify store associates whether customers in store are loyalty program members
- View customer profile, past purchases, shopping baskets to better assist customers in a personalized way
- Provide personalized recommendations to customers based on available products

Why Us?

Our priority is to create measurable business value for our retail clients. Our integrated approach within the Smart Digital Store framework ensures that we tailor the right solutions to each retailer's specific needs while ensuring that initiatives don't happen in isolation. We help retailers shape their unique brand vision for what success looks like today and tomorrow and provide the connective tissue between the key ingredients in the retail store experience - the customer, the store employee, the product and the store itself. Our partnerships with Intel and Google allow Capgemini to provide clients competitive advantage. We leverage Intel and Google technologies to enable a richer customer experience.
